Bridge is terrific! You y, as I do, the
nity of playing bridge our own home. You can or a hand or two, a full practice with your partner. Or to just kibitz layers.

About – Suggest an Edit

„The change, I think, will go from a book-publication as we know it to some form of electronic publication. And electronic publication would not be something with paper and binding but would be something that you would simply have access to, as you do to the voice of a friend on the telephone; so that you would be able to dial, so to speak, a book and receive it on a screen or on some erasable material that you would have beside the computer“

(John Cage, 1983)
